

Jason Kubota sees his role as a school counselor as that of an advocate in the school community that seeks to remove barriers to student success in a way that is both quantifiable and accountable. On a day-to-day basis, he strives to equal the playing field for all students through active involvement and consultation with the school community in a way that makes all an empowered and integral part of student success.

Mr. Kubota received his Associates of Science Degree from Snow College in Ephraim, Utah in 2008; his Bachelor of Arts in History from North Carolina State University in 2012, and his Master of Arts in Professional School Counseling from Appalachian State University in 2017. Prior to his career as a school counselor, Mr. Kubota has worked (at different times) as a newspaper advertising manager, substitute teacher, summer camp director, teambuilding facilitator and in the corporate world as a data analyst.

An avid outdoorsman and photographer, when not at school Mr. Kubota can be found on a hiking trail with his Pit Bull, Remi, somewhere in the High Country.
